

Outreach Services Privacy Notice –

Education and Outreach ‘Special Event’ Bookings

SPCB Privacy Notice

This privacy statement explains how we collect and use personal information about you for the following process:

Special events organised by Outreach Services

As part of its public engagement work, the Parliament’s Outreach Services team organises events and activities for members of the public to find out more about the Parliament and build their relationship with the institution. This might be a small community event for the public, or a CPD teacher training event.

The categories of information provided

We process normal category data as defined by the General Data Protection Regulation e.g. names, addresses and telephone numbers.

With regards to “Special Category” data as defined by the General Data Protection Regulation we may also process (such as race; ethnic origin; political views; religion; trade union membership; health or sexual orientation). We will record notes only where they relate to any additional access requirements within the group.

Source of the information

Personal data is provided to Outreach Services directly from individuals (data subjects) or other individuals or organisations on their behalf for the purposes of attending an event.

The purpose of the processing

We collect and use personal data for the purpose of making arrangements for an event at the Scottish Parliament or in a local community, and responding to related enquiries.

Delegates may choose to provide data during the event for specific purposes (such as signing up to our electronic newsletter) and this would be processed in line with the privacy notice for such activities.

The legal basis of processing

The Education Service exists to support those within the education system to understand the workings of the Parliament.

Increasing the awareness and understanding of the works of the Scottish Parliament and organising events to support that aim is a legitimate interest for the SPCB. The legal basis processing data for this activity is therefore that it is necessary for the purpose of a legitimate interest of the SPCB in accordance with Art 6(1)(f) GDPR.

Special category data is processed in order to facilitate access for individuals who have additional requirements. The legal basis for data processing is that it is necessary for reasons of substantial public interest in accordance with Art 9(2)(g) GDPR, s10(3) of and para 6(1), 2(a) of Schedule 1 to the DPB.

The Scotland Act 1998 gives SPCB the power to provide services. This includes our public engagement and education services. A service provider must make reasonable adjustments as required by s29(7)(a) of the Equality Act 2010. Complying with this duty is in the substantial public interest. In order to comply with duties under Equality Act, it is necessary to process some health-related data which is provided by the data subject or their representative in order to make arrangements to visit the Parliament for educational purposes. Processing personal data relating to protected characteristics enables the SPCB to make reasonable adjustments. This does not interfere with the rights of the data subjects disproportionately because the data subjects provide the data themselves or on their behalf for their benefit, they are not under an obligation to provide the data to us and we only keep the data for the minimum time necessary to comply with the statutory obligation.

Data sharing

Data may be shared internally with other departments within the SPCB, with Members of the Scottish Parliament and their staff insofar as necessary for achieving the education aim of the visit. In most cases however, individual names are not provided and data shared with the Member or their staff is aggregated within the group or event.

The data may also be shared with the police and other government security agencies, where necessary for security purposes.

For public engagement events the SPCB is organising in partnership with a third party (e.g. an external body dealing with Professional Development of teachers), the SPCB will share data with the partner insofar as necessary for access arrangements.

Retention of data

Personal data is retained securely in either electronic or paper form and then deleted automatically or destroyed after the event has passed.

Voicemails will be deleted as soon as your message has been dealt with. Personal information provided in voicemails may be transferred to written data retained in electronic or paper form and will be deleted or destroyed as outlined above.

Your rights

The GDPR sets out the rights which individuals have in relation to personal information held about them by data controllers. These rights are listed below, although whether you will be able to exercise each of these rights in a particular case may depend on the purpose for which the data controller is processing the data and the legal basis upon which the processing takes place.

Access to your information – You have the right to request a copy of the personal information about you that we hold. For further information, see our Data Subjects' Access Requests Policy.

Correcting your information – We want to make sure that your personal information is accurate, complete and up to date and you may ask us to correct any personal information about you that you believe does not meet these standards.

Deletion of your information – You have the right to ask us to delete personal information about you where:

- You consider that we no longer require the information for the purposes for which it was obtained.
- You have validly objected to our use of your personal information – see Objecting to how we may use your information below.
- Our use of your personal information is contrary to law or our other legal obligations.

Objecting to how we may use your information – Where we use your personal information to perform tasks carried out in the public interest or for a legitimate interest then, if you ask us to, we will stop using that personal information unless there are overriding legitimate grounds to continue.

Restricting how we may use your information – In some cases, you may ask us to restrict how we use your personal information. This right might apply, for example, where we are checking the accuracy of personal information about you that we hold or assessing the validity of any objection you have made to our use of your information. The right might also apply where this is no longer a basis for using your personal information but you don't want us to delete the data. Where this right is validly exercised, we may only use the relevant personal information with your consent, for legal claims or where there are other public interest grounds to do so.

Please contact us in any of the ways set out in the Contact information and further advice section if you wish to exercise any of these rights.

Changes to our privacy statement

We keep this privacy statement under regular review and will place any updates on this website. Paper copies of the privacy statement may also be obtained using the contact information below.
